FAZtor’s Notes

By: Fr. Arnold E. Zamora

Welcome to the “ber” months. We are now in September! Holy Name School starts this Tuesday. Welcome back to school!

Being a “man of the collar,” I usually attend a gathering of all men like a retreat, convocation or a convention of priests. This time, I attended a convention of all women as part of my new role as the chaplain/spiritual director of our Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women (ACCW). Together with parishioners Cathy Mi-bach (ACCW president) and Connie Mertes, Kathy Reese (Epiphany), Mary Ann Schwab (St. Brendan) and Joan Higgins (St. John the Evangelist), I attended the National Convention of Catholic Women in Pittsburg, PA.

Pittsburg has been in hot water, or maybe likened to the “epicenter of an earthquake” after some revelations about church sexual abuse. Most of the abuses are wounds of the past that have been reopened. I always wonder why they are bringing up the things of the past again when some cases have been addressed and resolved or have reached the statute of limitations. We are always told to forget our ugly past and move on. But there is something good in every bad situation and there is also a great value in remembering. Hurts done are not easily forgotten. Forgiveness doesn’t come easily and instantly either. As one remembers the hurt again and again, this person will also remember how to forgive “seventy times seven” and be reminded of God’s mercy and forgiveness. This time the church is given another chance to apologize to the victims, as we are once again reminded of the faithfulness of our call. So deep are the wounds of the past that apologies are needed for a complete healing. Time and time again we have to apologize and be forgiven. I also give my sincere apologies to the victims of this abuse, as well as to all of you for our betrayal to our priestly call.

I have heard so many apologies from the pope himself, the cardinals and bishops, down to the pastors of every church. But the one apology that caught my attention and admiration was from a survivor of clerical abuse addressed to the faithful priests. He said that these priests who have been faithful to their ministry are enduring the pain and betrayal, like what the eleven apostles must have felt when Judas not only betrayed Jesus but also all the apostles.

The topic of sexual abuse was not a topic at the Women’s convention. But the more than 500 or 600 Catholic women from all over the United States who attended the convention showed their faithfulness to the church in the midst of its scandal, opening their hearts with understanding, mercy and forgiveness right in the “heart of the scandal.” Praise to these faithful women!

Do you remember the story about a man who lost his wife in the large supermarket? The man approached a very beautiful woman and asked, “You know, I've lost my wife here in the supermarket. Can you talk to me for a couple of minutes?”

“Why?” the woman asked.

“Because every time I talk to a beautiful woman my wife appears out of nowhere.”

When a woman gives birth, she is in labor. All the mothers should also be honored this coming Monday. It's Labor Day. Happy Labor’s Day!

FAITH FORMATION CATECHESIS PASTORAL OUTREACH

Director: Sr. Cristina Ovejera, FdCC crisfdcc2016@yahoo.com (415)664-8590

REFLECTION:

In Whom God Delights

“It is hard for us to believe that “the Lord takes delight in his people” (Psalm 149:4) – all of us for we were all created in God’s image – you and me, the people we love and the people we hate, those who love us and those who hate us. There is no one in whom God does not delight. May we pray for the faith to see others as God does so that, delighting in them, we may give glory to God.”

-Rachel Linner

[The September schedule is on page 5 of this bulletin]
Lectio Divina

Read: Moses commands absolute obedience to the Law given by Yahweh. James invites us to be doers of the word that has been planted in our hearts. Jesus highlights the need to understand the heart of the Law and understand and follow its spirit.

Reflect: In the observance of religion, there is often a tension between fulfilment of ritual obligations and demands of charity and compassion. Such tension is palpable in the encounter between Jesus and the Pharisees following the ritually unclean act of the disciples. Jesus makes it clear: No law is good if it does not have charity as its fuel. James clarifies it functionally: “pure and blameless religion lies in helping the orphans, and widows in their need, and keeping oneself from the world’s corruption.”

Pray: We live in times of religious terrorism which forgets the centrality of charity at the heart of religion. Pray for those who have missed this essence of religion to rediscover the same and learn the ways of love.

Act: How can you practice “pure and blameless religion” in your context? List out three practical means.

Twenty-second Sunday in Ordinary Time
September 2, 2018

I read a terrific book the other day entitled "Shadows and the Dark." It is by Australian Jesuit Fr John Cowburn who is Professor of Philosophy at Jesuit Theological College, Melbourne. This book explores how we can hold to a loving God in the face of evil.

The idea for the book came when Fr John fell from his bicycle, broke his collarbone and was awaiting surgery in hospital. While there, an old religious sister came to his room to give him Holy Communion before going to the operating theater. Fr John told her about the accident. Sister said, "Well Father, God must have known you needed a little holiday, so he arranged for your fall." John replied, "If that's true Sister I'm pleased God didn't want me to take a sabbatical!" From Jesus' day to ours, when bad things happen to good people it seems easier to blame God or Satan. By his own admission Fr John had an accident because he didn't take enough care on his bike. End of story. That God can bring something good out of such an accident is grace building on nature. What Jesus confronts in today's Gospel is "The-devil-made-me-do-it" theology. And his response is as challenging now as it was in first century Palestine.

For as long as we blame our most destructive behavior on evil acting upon us in all its guises, empty promises and powers, then we remain some way from taking the sort of responsibility for the condition of our hearts that might see them fully converted by Christ's saving love. This is not to say that evil does not exist or that it cannot have a powerful effect upon us, quite the opposite. Just as grace builds on love and goodness, evil grows out of estrangement and hatred. As Christians we hold that God has given us free will, and evil's hold on our hearts is often the result of the poor choices and smaller compromises we have made along the way.

The way we look at the evil in our lives and the world also affects our compassion. For if we're not in touch with the greed that leads to theft, the anger that leads to murder, the desire for power that leads to rape, or the alienation that leads to terrorism, then it's hard for us to be compassionate toward the perpetrators of these evil acts. The degree to which we know what our hearts are capable of leads us to be grateful for the graces we receive and cultivate, and to be compassionate toward those who have missed out on this good news and who, by nurture or free will, have chosen evil as their fundamental option.

May this Eucharist enable us to take in the broken body of Christ because we know we are a broken people in need of its power, and as Christ's blood is poured for us, may we be poured out in love, so that, through us, others might hear His call to a conversion of heart.
